

Time is the precious which is given equally for us by God with aim to use it for benefit in good things. But we know that human is strange creation and their opinion, generality, tempers and spending their time is different too. Some of us prefer to squander our invaluable time for doing things with hurry other forechoose to spend their gift for living life in a slower place. This quandary made me to consider a lot because both of them have their own advantages and disadvantages.

To say quite honestly I am the person who loves a time and appreciate each second as well as does the jobs well and on time in a hurry. Why most people prefer to be in a haste to go places and get things done? Seeing both sides and totally different views people who are always quick are ambitious, serious and responsible. They are always have aim to do the job well and on time. They are liable for it and obligation demands serious actions. For example: do the work or job in a hurry because that work needs to be well and on the exact moment. There are three essential things of spending time: firstly to economize priceless time. Secondly what gained is how to waste time with meaning and with a lot of memories and pleasure for everything. The last is how to manage time and make a schedule work and live a life.

To sum up, to say that if you want to restraint your time and spend it for good intentions, expending your time in a hurry wastes, if not wait for the next term which expending of time in a haste would come in precise time in your timetable.
