Dear Rustam Nurgalievich! Dear participants! Ladies and gentlemen!

First of all, let me warmly greet all those gathered and express my gratitude to the President of the Republic of Tatarstan, dear Rustam Nurgalievich Minnikhanov, for the invitation to participate and speak at this important Forum.

Taking this opportunity, I would like to note the huge role of Rustam Nurgalievich in strengthening fraternal relations between Turkmenistan and the Republic of Tatarstan, his personal long-term achievements in expanding economic, cultural, scientific, educational, and sports ties with our country.

It is natural that the Rais of the Republic of Tatarstan enjoys great respect and authority among the Turkmen people. We see in him not only the head of one of the most developed regions of Russia, with whom our country has been developing mutually beneficial relations for many years, but also a faithful, devoted friend, a steadfast and comprehensive pragmatist of fraternal Turkmen-Tatarstan ties as the most important factor in successfully building up strategic partnership between Turkmenistan and the Russian Federation. Let me express my great gratitude to you, dear Rustam Nurgalievich, for this.

And of course, the outstanding contribution of the Rais of Tatarstan to strengthening Russia's ties with the Islamic world, building bridges of mutual understanding and cooperation, and combining long-term interests and goals should be particularly noted.

Largely due to the activities of Rustam Minnikhanov, his ability as a politician and diplomat to build respectful, trusting, open relations with the leaders of many states, we see significant progress in this direction. One of the results is the holding of the current Forum, a wide and representative composition of its participants.

KazanForum 2024”

Dear friends!

It is obvious that today Russia’s relations with the Islamic world are on the rise. They are gaining momentum and consistency, covering new areas, have increasingly clear guidelines and growing potential. I think this is a natural and objective process.

It is based on a deep historical context, centuries-old experience of geographical proximity, mutual cultural and spiritual penetration and enrichment, a similar understanding of genuine values and moral attitudes inherent in the peoples of Russia and Islamic states.

For centuries, Russia and Muslim countries have been creating a civilizational belt connecting East and West from the Pacific Ocean to the Atlantic. Unique forms of relationships were formed, which were based on mutual respect, tolerance, and recognition of each other’s interests.

This historical experience is once again gaining special significance and necessity in the current conditions.

In this context, Russia and the Islamic countries demonstrate an example of how it is possible and necessary to build relations between countries and peoples – respectfully, equitably, delving into and understanding the needs of a partner, without resorting to pressure, threats, and the use of short-term benefits. I am convinced that this is our strength, advantage and perspective. It is also obvious that this approach is gaining more and more supporters in the world.

At the same time, in addition to the mentioned principles, I believe that Russia and the Islamic world are called upon to show examples of effective and attractive economic and technological models of cooperation. Commitment to traditional values, peace and social justice, which serve as a moral core and support for us, should be combined with familiarization with modern trends, innovative implementations in the economy and everyday life. And here, I am convinced, there is a huge field for joint activities.

The powerful technological, scientific, and educational potential of Russia, combined with such undeniable advantages of many states of the Islamic world as developed infrastructure, extensive natural resources, a young and mobile population, and other growth factors, creates conditions for large-scale joint projects, building sustainable lines of industrial, energy, and transport cooperation, scientific and educational exchanges, and unification intellectual forces and advanced, breakthrough solutions.

In general, I am convinced that, being open to partnership for the whole world, Russia and the Islamic countries, joining their enormous capabilities, are able to influence global trends in the most serious way and in a positive way – in politics, economy, morally and psychologically, demonstrating that goodwill, peacefulness, respect and the desire for progress, without prejudice to identity, national dignity and historical experience, should remain the cornerstone in relations between the nations and peoples. There is no alternative.

Turkmenistan, as a responsible member of the world community and part of the Islamic world, sees as its goal the promotion of such an approach, offering concrete steps and actions.

As you know, at the 78th session of the United Nations General Assembly, the President of Turkmenistan took the initiative to develop a Global Security Strategy, an integral part of which would be the use of the potential of neutrality and preventive diplomacy.

Another important event was the unanimous adoption by the General Assembly on March 21, 2024, with the co-authorship of 86 UN Member States, of the Resolution proposed by Turkmenistan on declaring 2025 the "International Year of Peace and Trust".

This is a big, significant event. And I would like to take this opportunity to express my gratitude to all countries, and especially to the co-sponsor states, many of whose representatives are participating in the current forum in Kazan, for their understanding and active participation in the preparation and approval of this document.

I believe that Islamic countries can play a significant role in promoting peace and trust. Their voice should sound firmly and authoritatively with a clear call to do everything possible to de-escalate the situation in the world, bring conflicts into a negotiating channel, create conditions for respectful dialogue, and establish in international affairs not only a culture of communication, but also a culture of consensus.

I suggest that at this Forum we consider the possibility of developing an "Islamic Initiative for Peace, Mutual Understanding and Trust." We see it as a coordinated set of approaches and proposals, a kind of Roadmap based on the tenets of Islam as a religion of peace, goodness and justice, and addressed to the peoples of the planet.

I consider it advisable to discuss this proposal with the Organization of Islamic Cooperation and other interested international structures, work together on the text and put it forward at one of the sessions of the UN General Assembly as an official document.

An important point: the "Islamic Initiative" should be open to all States for joining. I am sure that in this form it will find a response from all sane and responsible sides of the world community, not only from politicians, but also from ordinary people, and will give a clear and powerful signal: the Islamic Ummah does not stand aside, but in a consolidated manner and with the support of other states and peoples actively and constructively intends to influence the state of affairs in peace, promote agreement and compromise.

Dear participants!

Islam is one of those strong and stable spiritual bonds that have been binding the multinational people of Russia and the peoples of Muslim states for centuries.

National Leader of the Turkmen people participated in 15th
International Economic Forum "Russia-the Islamic World:
KazanForum 2024"

The highest culture, moral strength, and deep spirituality reflected in the immortal works of poets, philosophers, thinkers, and enlighteners of Russia and Islamic countries are our common heritage. We do not separate ourselves from the great Russian culture, literature, music, and cinema, we know that they were fed from the source of wisdom, knowledge, and the worldview of Islam and therefore belong equally to Russia and Muslim countries.

This year, the 300th anniversary of the birth of the great classic of Turkmen literature, the outstanding thinker of the East, Magtymguly Fragi, is widely celebrated in Turkmenistan and abroad. In Russia, in particular, in Moscow, the Republic of Tatarstan, St. Petersburg, the Astrakhan region, and in many countries of the Islamic world, events dedicated to this anniversary are taking place. I want to express my deep gratitude to all our friends for this. Turkmenistan highly appreciates such support and considers it not just as a tribute to our national genius, but also as a sign of respect for the Turkmen people, readiness to strengthen cultural and spiritual ties with Turkmenistan.

In this regard, I consider it necessary to express another important thought. I would like Magtymguly's anniversary not to end with the celebrations.

Dear friends!

Let it become a starting point for the formation of a new stage of cultural, humanitarian, spiritual, scientific cooperation between Turkmenistan and Russia, the countries of the Islamic world, inspire our writers, publishers, scientists, researchers to new joint projects on a wide range of historical, literary, philosophical topics, helps the joint creativity of young talents, the development of thematic programs along the educational institutions.

This is a contribution to the future, which will provide our countries with one of the most important strategic prospects for cooperation, progress, mutual understanding and sympathy, and will further strengthen the commonality of noble thoughts and aspirations of Russia and the Islamic world.

Thank you for your attention and wish all participants of the meeting good health and success in their responsible activities.

I take this opportunity to convey the wishes of peace and prosperity to the fraternal people of Tatarstan.

In conclusion, I would like to once again note the significant contribution of dear Rustam Nurgalievich Minnikhanov to the development of cooperation between the Russian Federation and the countries of the Islamic world and express gratitude for the efforts made in this direction.
