

Representatives of the Seyitnazar Seydi Turkmen State Pedagogical Institute visited France from November 20 to 27. The delegates familiarized themselves with advanced innovative technologies, information protection, and studied the experience of their implementation in educational, methodological, and research work. This was reported by the press service of the Turkmen relevant department.

The Turkmen delegation visited the Sorbonne University, Paris City University, and the American Business School, where they learned about the organization of the educational process, the experience of implementing artificial intelligence technologies, the use of 3D modeling in engineering and physics, and educational programs in robotics.

It is worth noting that this delegation's trip is relevant in the context of the new complex of the Seyitnazar Seydi Turkmen State Pedagogical Institute being built in accordance with world standards.
