

Adsorbi to build a plant for producing air-purifying wood material

Investments came from Metsä Spring, Chalmers Ventures, Jovitech Invest, and the Swedish Innovation Agency. Adsorbi technology is already used in air filters, odor control products, and even in museum storage. As the European Union tightens air quality requirements, Adsorbi's products are capable of "meeting the growing demand for better air purification solutions", the media reports.