

The new iPhone SE is likely to be unveiled this spring, around April. Some sources suggest it might be named iPhone 16E. It will feature significant design changes, including a 6.1-inch OLED screen, an improved Face ID system, a USB-C port, and many other innovations.

Among other improvements will be support for Apple Intelligence across the entire Apple smartphone lineup. However, all these enhancements will lead to an increase in the device's cost, and rumors suggest the new iPhone SE will cost at least $499.