

The search function will help users easily find necessary documents and information within the app. Now, digital copies of various documents such as cards, IDs, driver's licenses, tickets, transactions, etc., can be added.

However, insiders note that if there are too many documents in the app, searching might become a challenging task. Specialists have activated the user interface of Google Wallet v24.52, but "search results are not yet available." The interface includes a search button in the top right corner, which opens the search screen.

"This update makes Google Wallet even more useful for storing and searching information," the material notes.
