On March 8, 2025, an important event took place in Eindhoven, the Netherlands, which adorned the international panorama of peace and culture—a festival dedicated to International Women’s Day. This unique festival brought together representatives of various nations, showcasing the contributions of women in preserving cultural heritage, strengthening international cooperation, and promoting the principles of peace and trust, as reflected in the proclamation of Turkmenistan declares 2025 as the “International Year of Peace and Trust”

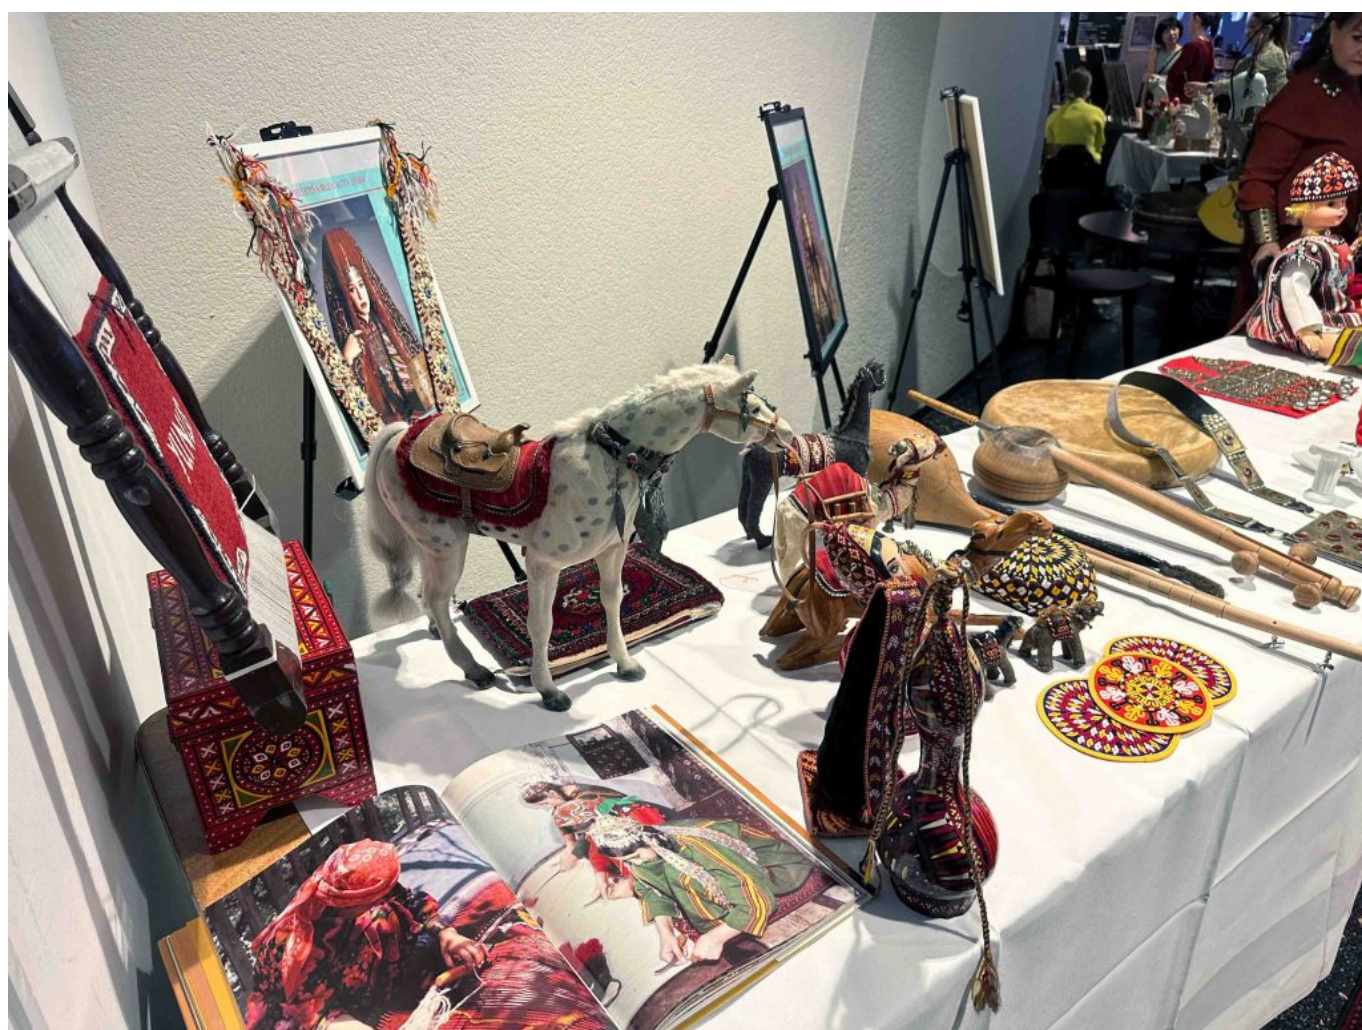

One of the most striking and unique pavilions at the exhibition was the pavilion of Turkmenistan, organized by the Embassy of Turkmenistan in Belgium in collaboration with the fashion house “Mengli Secrets World Fashion” based in the Netherlands. This corner of Turkmen art attracted attention with its rich exposition, presenting authentic samples of national creativity and the spiritual heritage of the Turkmen people. The stand featured exclusive jewelry created according to ancient Turkmen masters' canons, as well as national souvenirs and exquisite outfits combining traditional elements of national costume with modern fashion trends.

An integral part of the exhibition was traditional musical instruments, symbolizing the rich cultural palette of the Turkmen people. Their sound filled the hall with an atmosphere of harmony, reflecting the power of art capable of uniting people from different corners of the planet.

The Turkmen pavilion became a reflection of the philosophy of peace pursued by Turkmenistan in international relations, remaining faithful to its principles of humanism and cultural interaction. The Parktheater in Eindhoven became a symbolic bridge connecting peoples and traditions. On this day, the theater stage turned into an arena for inspiring performances, dances, and musical presentations, demonstrating the harmonious
