

The football match between Turkmenistan and Chinese Taipei took place on March 25 as part of the AFC Asian Cup qualification stage. The game was held at the National Stadium in Kaohsiung, Taiwan, and both teams performed commendably.

In the first half, both teams focused on defensive strategies, making it hard to score. However, in the second half, the Turkmenistan team strengthened its attacking strategy and scored two goals. Chinese Taipei responded with one goal. As a result, Turkmenistan won the match 2-1.

This victory marked a significant step for Turkmenistan in achieving success in international football tournaments. The team not only showcased strong gameplay but also delivered thrilling moments to spectators. This match highlighted the potential of Turkmenistan's team to achieve even greater success in the future.