

The representative of the country's Democratic Party, Li Çže Mýon, has become the new President of the Republic of Korea. He won the short-term elections that were held after the dismissal of the former Head of State, Yun Sok Ýol. This was reported by the country's Central Election Committee.

According to official results, the elected President Li received 49.42% of the votes. His main opponent, the People Power Party's candidate, Kim Mun Su, received 41.15% of the votes.

As reported by TDH, our esteemed President Serdar Berdimuhamedov sent his heartfelt congratulations to Mr. Li Çže Mýon on his victory in the presidential elections of the Republic of Korea.

In his congratulatory letter, our Head of State expressed high appreciation for the effective ties established with the Republic of Korea and confirmed his readiness to work together to further develop mutually beneficial cooperation.

«THE ASHGABAT TIMES»