

The head of Nothing replied to criticism of the Phone 3 buyers: "We went too far"

The general director of the company Nothing Karl Pay commented on reviews about the Phone 3 smartphone. The main claims of customers came to dissatisfaction with the design and work of the chipset.

According to Pey, Nothing Phone 3 is not a universal solution and may not match the expectations of all users. Karl Piy supported the technology of the matrix display Glyph Matrix, implemented in the Phone 3, as well as the limited functionality of the device. He emphasized that in the future the company plans to develop a rich ecosystem, which will include additional services and opportunities.

Also, the head of Nothing noted the work of the Snapdragon 8s Gen 4 processor, emphasizing that the manufacturer does not focus on users striving for maximum performance in narrow tasks, such as games.

Among the shortcomings, Phone 3 Poi agreed with the ambiguous design of the model and problems with the cooling of the processor. He emphasized that when choosing a smartphone, it is important to consider factors such as the quality of the camera, display characteristics, battery capacity and key technical parameters.

The manager explained that the Phone 3 of those devices that "someone likes, someone-no," but agreed with criticism, noting that "we went too far."

"We have developed a product that we are really proud of. Someone likes him, someone is not, and this is normal. On the one hand, it is great that we have so many caring users, but on the other hand, I think that we overdo it a little with Phone 3, "the Nothing head explained.