

TSMC expects a record profit in 2025 thanks to high demand for chips for artificial intelligence.

CCE Director General Wei said that the demand in the AI segment remains “very high” and TSMC is building production capacities to satisfy customers’ needs. The main clients of the company are NVIDIA and Apple.

At the same time, Wei denied rumors about the construction of a plant in the Middle East, emphasizing that TSMC continues to develop sites in the USA, Europe and Japan. Despite the influence of American tariffs, the company expects to set new records for revenue and arrived this year.

In April, TSMC sales increased by 48% compared to last year and amounted to about $ 11.6 billion. The company admits that tariff wars can reduce the demand for semiconductors in the future, but so far the business remains stable.