

5.4 billion rubles were allocated for schools of creative industries in Russia

The Government of the Russian Federation allocated 5.4 billion rubles to create schools of creative industries in the regions of Russia. This was announced by Deputy Minister of Culture Zhanna Alekseeva during the All -Russian festival “We are together!” In Saransk.

The project has been implemented since 2022 with the support of the Ministry of Culture. To date, 93 such schools are already working, and from September 1 another 25 will open in new regions. Currently, they are completing the installation of the necessary equipment.

Schools of creative industries are intended for adolescents from 12 to 18 years old. Training takes place in high-tech studios in six main directions: sound engineering, electronic music, photo and video production, animation, 3D graphics and design.

According to Alekseeva, these training centers are actively integrated into the cultural life of the regions. Students not only master modern technologies, but also put them in practice- they develop design projects, create animation films and interactive installations for local organizations.
