

The recent Huawei Mate XTS Ultimate Design teaser caused a wave of rumors and the imminent appearance of the flagship Mate 80 series. After the announcement of a folding smartphone, users began to actively ask when to wait for the next ruler. Huawei officially answered these questions through the support service.

The company thanked the fans for interest, but noted that so far "there is no information for disclosure." Users were advised to monitor official sources - the site Huawei, Weibo and the My Huawei application. According to rumors, the premiere of Mate 80 can take place at the beginning of the fourth quarter of 2025.

It is reported that smartphones will receive a new processor, the performance of which is 60% higher than the last model. An improved periscopic chamber and other new technologies are also discussed.

So far, all these data remain only rumors.