

It is no secret that Huawei plans to update its mid -budget folding smartphone. According to the latest leaks, Nova Flip 2 may come out the next month, although there is no official confirmation yet.

Last year, Huawei introduced the first Nova Flip model in August. It was expected that the second version would appear by the end of this month, but the terms, according to the media, have moved. Together with Nova Flip 2, the company will probably also release Nova 14 Lite Edition.

Earlier in September, Huawei plans to introduce a new three -fold smartphone, however, the more affordable Nova Flip 2 may be released by the end of September if the company confirms the release date.

Nova Flip is distinguished by a design: on the rear panel a square additional screen and two cameras. The main screen is the 6.94-inch folding LTPO OLED, additional-2.14 inches, both with the frequency of update 120 Hz. The smartphone works on HarmonyOS 4.2 with an eight -core Kirin chip.

Cameras: the main 50 MP, ultrashirokaya 8 megapixels, frontal – 32 megapixels for selfies. The battery 4400 mAh, support for fast wired charging 66 watts and a reversible 5 watts. Four colors are available: green, pink, white and black.