

In Russia, the cell numbers used for public services will begin to check

In Russia, they will begin to check the mobile numbers that people use for registration and authorization in public services systems. This was reported by TASS with reference to the plan approved by the government.

Now, when entering digital services, they will check whether the number really belongs to the specified user. If the number is no longer used by the owner, he will be disconnected from the account.

The verification will be carried out by the Minzifres, the Ministry of Finance, the Ministry of Internal Affairs, the Ministry of Economic Development, Roskomnadzor and the FSB. It is planned that the work will end to the fourth quarter of 2026. The purpose of such measures is to reduce cases of theft of accounts and fraud.

In theory, this should help protect users and their data in the state. services, as well as complicate the life of attackers.