

In the Yandex GO application in the Transport section, the purchase of tickets for Aeroexpress and express auto-boats, which follow before Moscow airports and vice versa, became available. The innovation simplifies travel planning and allows you to quickly pay for travel in an already familiar interface.

To purchase a ticket, the user must indicate the desired airport as a destination, select the date of the trip, and then choose the right option from the list of routes. You can pay for the ticket with a card that is already tied to other Yandex services.

The ticket is immediately stored in the application and will be available when passing through the turnstile. It can also be found in the history of orders or on the main screen. The service offers the purchase of tickets both in one direction and back and forth. The possibility of registration is available 90 days before the trip or on the day of departure.

The new function will be useful to passengers who often fly or go on business trips. The ability to choose a route, calculate the time, pay for a trip and have a ticket at hand – all this is now available in one application.
