

KTC has released its first smart points with artificial intelligence in China. You can already draw up a pre -order on JD.com for 999 yuan (about $ 139), sales will begin on September 1.

Glasses weighing only 39 grams have a matte black case and gradient lenses. The frame is made of a durable nylon, and thin arches 4 mm thick and the “thought -out angle of inclination” make glasses “convenient for long -term wearing”, the company boasts. If necessary, you can replace standard lenses with prescription.

For shooting, a 12-MP Sony sensor is used, which takes a photo with a resolution of  $3024 \times 4032$  and video  $1440 \times 1920$  at 30 frames/s. Electronic stabilization, HDR, fast shutter operation and noise reduction are built -in. Inside Qualcomm Snapdragon AR1.

KTC introduced light smart glasses with AI, 12 MP and Snapdragon
AR1

KTC

AI Assistant supports voice teams, translation into 16 languages, schedule management and simple communication. The sound is provided by built -in speakers and five microphones with noise reduction and echoing.

Все права защищены

The battery of glasses 173 mAh provides up to 3 hours of communication with AI, 40 minutes of recording video or 4 hours of music. The complete case of 3000 mAh can completely charge points 12 times before its own discharge.

There is Wi-Fi 6, Bluetooth 5.3, protection against water and dust according to the IP54 standard and an indicator that shows when the camera works. Personal data is not loaded into the cloud.