Max messenger opened a round -the -clock connection with the security center

A new function has been launched in the Max National Messenger – now users can at any time report suspicious or malicious materials directly to the security center. To do this, it is enough to choose a message in the chat, press and hold it, then mark the "complain" item, indicate the reason and send the complaint.

According to cyber police, the center's specialists react to appeals around the clock. Only in July 2025 they prevented possible damage from more than 32 thousand dangerous files and blocked the use of over 10 thousand telephone numbers used by scammers.

In addition, MAX has a "safe mode" that fully protects users from unwanted communication with strangers.

MAX messenger is a part of Russian software and is available in applications and web versions.
