

Red Magic 11 will be the first smartphone with a fan and IP68 protection

Red Magic 11 may be released in October or November of this year. So, according to the Digital Chat Station insider data, the device will receive protection according to the IP68 standard and the active cooling system.

The Red Magic series is generally released by built -in fans for cooling. But until now, the level of protection has been limited to the IP54 standard. Now the Red Magic 11 will be the first smartphone to combine the built -in cooler and complete protection against dust and water.

It is also reported that the smartphone will work on the top -end Snapdragon 8 Elite 2 top processor, which makes it a contender for the role of one of the most powerful flagships of the late 2025.

So far, there are no exact data on other characteristics. According to rumors, the company can imagine two models at once – Red Magic 11 Pro and Red Magic 11 Pro+.
