

The expected Oppo F31 smartphone will allegedly differ in the strength of the “new level”

The Gizmochina portal said that the expected Oppo F31 series can boast of high strength. Recently, information about the new model appeared on the network, which reveals the design of the phone organized at the flagship level, although the model belongs to the middle segment.

Information about the Oppo F31 indicates that the smartphone will be protected from water and dust at the flagship level. This information was obtained from the well-known insider Paras Gulagney. He claims that the new Oppo F31 series will have a class of protection against water and dust IP68 and IP69. He also notes that the slogan of these phones is “a new level strength”.

The degree of protection IP68 and IP69 means that the device is protected from dust and can be immersed under water to a depth of 1.5 meters for 30 minutes. Protection against high pressure streams is also provided.

The source notes that “excellent protection” was a distinctive feature of the F29 series, and it is likely that many of these functions will be available in new models, including F31. Probably, they will have a military class building and protection at 360 degrees.

Guglany is sure that Oppo will demonstrate a truly impressive strength with the help of a “crazy dough for waterproof” and testing, during which the devices will be checked for impact resistance.

So far, there is no other information about Oppo F31 and F31 Pro.