

The folding Oppo Find N6 Flip seems to see the light three years later-in 2026

Oppo, which in 2023 released the Find N3 FLIP cot, has not been updated by the ruler since then. However, according to rumors, in 2026, Oppo plans to return to this segment with the Find N6 Flip model.

The Smart Pikachu insider reported that together with Find N6, the company is developing an updated line. It is expected that Find N6 will be the first folding smartphone based on the new Snapdragon 8 Elite 2 chip and will receive a case with titanium elements, which will make it easier and thinner than the previous Find N5 model.

For comparison: Find N5 weighs 229 grams and has a thickness of only 4.2 mm in an unfolded form. It is assumed that Find N6 will be presented in the first quarter of 2026, possibly even earlier than the Find X9 Ultra flagship, which should be released in March of the same year.

As for Find N6 Flip, there are no details about its characteristics and the exact release date. It is also not confirmed whether it will save just such a name.