

The Honor Magic 8 series will be released relatively soon. So, according to the insider, the devices will receive four shades. The line is expected: black, white, cyan and titanium-gold.

For comparison: the previous series Magic 7 offered more options-up to five in the standard model and four Pro versions, and the version of the RSR Porsche Design had two special shades.

In addition to the design, the leak has opened other improvements. All Magic 8 models will receive:

- Periscope Camer for shooting with an increase.
- Ultrasonic fingerprint scanner.
- Wireless charging.

These functions will become standard for the entire series. However, the 3D-enabled technology is expected only in the top version of Magic 8 Ultra.

The Pro-model, according to rumors, will receive a flat screen of 6.58 inches with a round neckline for a selfie camera. The line will also appear Magic 8 Mini and Magic 8 Ultra, which can debut in the first half of 2026.

The main models of the series should be released in the fall of 2025.
