

*WhatsApp will allow you to communicate with users who do not have an account in the messenger

The Wabetainfo portal said that a major innovation will appear in *WhatsApp to communicate with the messenger users and people who do not have an account in it.

In the beta version of WhatsApp for Android, a guest chat function appeared. To participate in such a chat, it is necessary to create a unique link for a new participant. It is important to note that communication within the guest chat is possible only between two users.

The functionality of guest chats is limited by text messages. Sending images, video or GIF, as well as audio and video calls are not provided. But the plus is that the WhatsApp user will be able to communicate with a person without an account in the messenger, and this does not need the application at all.
