

The Windows Latest portal reports that the Windows Update 11 KB5064081 update, specially designed for the 24H2 version, returned a clock with seconds built into the calendar on the task panel, and provides direct links for downloading an autonomous installer in the .MSU format.

The update includes a new home page with artificial intelligence, updates the OS to the Windows 11 version 26100.5074, and also includes numerous improvements for integrated applications and Windows.

In addition, Microsoft improved the four main components of AI integrated into Windows 11: image search, content extract, semantic analysis and search model. Improvements and corrections of errors are also implemented for blocking, greeting and settings section.

It is reported that Windows backup is now supported for corporate users and administrators. More than ten errors have been eliminated in the update.
