Xiaomi officially announced that in August the global release of a series of smartphones Redmi Note 15 Pro would be held.

The company noted that the Note line has been holding a leading position in the price segment of $ 175-499 for 12 years and is represented in more than 100 countries.

According to the General Manager of the Marketing Department Xiaomi and the head of the Redmi brand van Tan Thomas, the new devices will meet the highest standards of 2025 and offer users premium quality.

Although the design and a complete list of characteristics have not yet been disclosed, one of the key announced parameters is a 7000 mAh battery, which promises a noticeable increase in battery life.

The presentation of Redmi Note 15 Pro should shed light on other technical details, including the processor, camera and charging technologies, but now the company is heating interest, positioning the model as one of the most anticipated updates in the series.
