

PayPal has launched an action for users in a number of countries. PayPal and Venmo account owners can get two Perplexity bonuses for free at once, which actively competes with ChatGPT.

The first gift is access to the new Comet browser. This is a desktop application with AI, which helps to look for information, prompt solutions to problems, give a resume of the text and, in general, is able to work with content from the screen.

The second bonus is a free 12-month subscription of Perplexity Pro, which at the usual time costs $ 200.

The action will last until the end of the year. You can design it through the PayPal application in the "Subscriptions" section or via Venmo. For users in some countries, a separate page with a proposal is provided.