

The long-anticipated New Year, awaited by everyone with great hopes and sincere wishes, has finally arrived. Ashgabat, dressed in its beautiful New Year attire, has turned into a radiant city at night. Inspired by the enchanting glow of festive lights, people share warm greetings and joy with one another — a true sign of unity among the population.

For several days now, crowds have been gathering around the festive trees, whose colorful lights brighten peaceful nights and highlight the beauty of our Homeland. In particular, the flow of visitors remains steady at the nation's Main New Year Tree located in front of the "Alem" Cultural and Recreation Center. Adorned with thousands of decorations and lighting elements, the dazzling tree attracts residents and guests of the Turkmen capital who come to attend celebrations and capture memorable photographs. Festive scenes shine across central squares, along major avenues, in parks, and in every corner of the city.

The Year of International Peace and Trust, filled with tireless achievements, major progress, and pure aspirations, has brought prosperity and joy to our people. Under the leadership of our Esteemed President, the year 2025 has been marked by success in all fields, instilling pride in every heart and warmth in every soul. During these delightful New Year moments, the eagerness to congratulate loved ones, to extend wishes to friends, relatives, and neighbors reflects the continuity of the noble traditions of our ancestors.

May the joyful voices of happy children echo throughout our beloved country — the land of everlasting prosperity! May the New Year bring abundance, well-being, and happiness to the Turkmen people!
