By introducing quotas and placement rules, countries in Central Asia, including Turkmenistan, are achieving visible results, and advancing global commitments under CEDAW and the SDGs," said Tomica Paovic, UNDP Deputy Resident Representative in Turkmenistan, opening the event. "UNDP will continue to support Turkmenistan's efforts to strengthen democratic institutions and promote international standards, including advancing women's participation in political and public life."

The event is part of Turkmenistan's ongoing efforts to implement the National Action Plan on Gender Equality and fulfill its commitments under CEDAW and the Sustainable Development Goals. UNDP will continue to support Turkmenistan in promoting Temporary Special Measures to expand women's participation in political and public life, strengthening monitoring and accountability, investing in leadership development, and enhancing coordination among national institutions and development partners to ensure inclusive,
